The old saying "if you tell a lie often enough, it will be believed" is still good. The Microsoft lie that any restrictions on them would limit innovation has taken the form of a truth. How can bundling an internet explorer be called innovation?

I am amazed that you sold out to them after the appellate court agreed they are a monopoly , all you had to do was let the court determine a just settlement.

You truly are a great friend of big business, I say that as a former Republican.
